Montgomery City, Mo., Feb. 19, 1866; s. Noah and Mary Ann (Sailor) S.; A.B., L.B., S.B., U. of Mo., 1889; A.M., Ph.D., U. of Berlin, 1892; m. Frances Graves, of Montgomery City, June 18, 1907. In charge obs. of U. of Mo., 1887-89; volunteer observer Royal Obs., Berlin, 1891; traveled in Italy, Egypt, Greece, Germany and England, 1890-2; organized and had charge dept. of astronomy, and aided in organization of Yerkes Obs., U. of Chicago, 1893-96; astronomer Lowell Obs. in charge survey of Southern heavens, 1896-98; with 24-in. Clark refractor at Flagstaff, Ariz., and City of Mexico, examined about 200,000 fixed stars, in zone bet. 15 and 65 degrees south declination, which led to discovery and measurement of about 600 new double stars and remeasurement of some 1,400 double stars previously recognized by Sir John Herschel and other observers. Prof. mathematics, U.S.N., since 1899; in charge 26-in. equatorial telescope, U.S. Naval Obs., 1899-1902; prof. mathematics, U.S. Naval Acad., 1902-3, Naval Obs., Mare Island, Cal., since 1903; lecturer on sidereal astronomy, Lowell Inst., Boston, 1899. During 1901-2 investigated the diameters of the planets and satellites by daylight, deducing their constants of irradiation and absolute densities. Observed earthquake at San Francisco, California, Apr. 18, 1906, and proved that world-shaking earthquakes and mountain formation depend on leakage of ocean and expulsion of lava, producing great wall along margin, as in typical case of the Andes. During 1908-9 established laws of the formation of the solar system, showing that the planets and satellites were not detached from the bodies which now govern their motions, as supposed by Laplace, but they have all been captured, and they have since had their orbits reduced in size and rounded up into almost perfect circles under the secular action of a resisting medium. During years 1910, 1911 investigated the depth of the Milky Way, improving and extending the forgotten methods of Sir William Herschel, and showed that this depth is several million light-years, and thus about a thousand times greater than astronomers have recently believed; this led to the republication of Herschel's collected works by the Royal Astronomical Society and Royal Society of London. Has computed about sixty orbits of double stars. During 1912 developed dynamical theory of the Globular Clusters and of the clustering power inferred by Herschel for sidereal systems of high order. After researches extending over ⅓ of a century, finally discovered, Apr. 3, 1914, the cause of universal gravitation. In 1920-21 published "New Theory of the Aether," showing that this medium is a superfine gas. In August, 1921, discovered the cause of sunspots and their 11-year periodicity, in meteoric swarms precipitated upon the Sun by Jupiter and Saturn; also definitely traced the Cepheid Geminid, Mira, and Cluster Variable Stars to similar meteoric showers in thousands of these sidereal systems. Commd. capt., 1913. Fellow or mem. many scien. socs., U.S. and abroad. Author: Die Entwickelung der Doppelstern Systeme, Berlin, 1893; Researches on the Evolution of the Stellar Systems, Vol. I, Lynn, 1896; Vol. II, Capture Theory of Cosmical Evolution, 1910; Researches on the Physical Constitution and Rigidities of the Heavenly Bodies, Kiel, 1904-6; Electrodynamic Wave-Theory of Physical Forces (Lynn, London and Paris), 1917; Researches on the Physical Cause of the Land and Water Hemispheres, and on the Figure of the Earth, Kiel, 1916, 1921; New Theory of the Aether, Six Mathematical Memoirs, Kiel, 1920-21; also double star catalogues, and many contbns. on astron. subjects to tech. jours. and mags. Address: Mare Island, Calif.
